Martina Schulte, MD

BIOGRAPHY

Dr. Martina (Marti) Schulte created Community Physician Consulting (CPC) while practicing primary care internal medicine. Through CPC, Marti coaches individuals and organizations on issues of burnout, work engagement and personal and professional fulfillment. Her focuses are on creating healthy work environments, building sustainable care settings with engaging cultures, and helping individuals thrive in their personal and professional lives.

Through more than 25 years of experience in primary care medicine, Marti has worked with underserved, urban populations, including persons who are homeless and persons with HIV. She also has experience in process improvement, care registries, team leadership, and chronic pain management.

Marti received her executive coaching certificate from Case Western Reserve University Weatherhead School of Management, and she did her medical school training at the University of Kentucky. Her internal medicine residency training was at the University of Colorado.

She shares her time between Denver and New York, where her husband works, and she is the proud mother of three, millennial, adult daughters.
