AGENDA

8:00am Registration, Coffee, Networking

8:45am Welcome and Opening Remarks

9:00am Influence: How to Move People

Aaron Templer

Independent Marketing and Leadership Consultant

We might not like to hear this, but we spend a remarkable amount of time selling. Put more accurately by author Daniel Pink, non-sales selling. We sell ideas in our organizations. We sell ourselves during interviews. We sell health best practices in communities. We sell the value of something to others so often that we owe it to ourselves to deliberately examine what keeps people rooted in the status quo and what motivates change. This presentation will borrow research and best practices from several disciplines to help you become a more effective salesperson— er..., motivator of ideas.

10:15pm Break

10:30am Guerilla Facilitation: Make Your Meetings Better

David Remson

Triangle Consulting

Do you ever hear colleagues talk about meetings being a waste of their time? That they want to finish up with meetings to get back to “work”? Let’s make sure this doesn’t happen to meetings under your watch. Successful facilitation is possible! It’s a delicate balance of art and science. In this workshop you will learn strategies to build better meetings, encourage active engagement and add to your facilitator toolkit.

12:00pm Lunch and Networking

1:00pm Build a Better Brain: Giving People the Insight and the Power to Improve their Brains

RJ Graham

Dynamic Transitions

This fun and interactive workshop will provide a fascinating approach to how we can actually improve the use of our brains for better personal and professional results. The discussions, exercises, and experiential activities will reinforce the principles of neuroscience in practical, useful and entertaining ways. At the end of this session, participants will be able to: (a) understand basic brain functions in a practical, useful context of daily life; (b) be more aware of elements that can enhance or detract from optimal brain function; and (c) learn how to be more precise in paying attention, making decisions, and leading others.
